Hens Need Green Feeds to Stimulate Egg Production

Beginners in poultry keeping often wonder why some hens will lay steadiby when eggs are worth but 10 cents • dozen and hav only an occasional egg or loaf continually when eggs are 45 cents a dozen writes a correspondent of the Farm and Fireside. I used to blame the hen but now I know it isn't her fault.

I have found that the time of year that the hens my best is in the spring. when there is plenty of green feed and an abundance of exercise. By feeding green products in the winter and compelling them to keep in action I can best imitate nature and bring spring conditions to my hens. The question 18, Does it pay? It pays me.

Cabbage at I any of the beet family are green eeds which I used profstably to feed my chickens in the winter. Green ured alfalfa and clover which has been steamed or boiled. sprouted oats or pumpkins have also been profitable green feeds for my chickens.

Mothe 's Doll Story

The Lost Mittens

Right after Christmas a little boy whose name was Charlie went out to play in the dooryard.

He took with him a pair of lovely red mittens that Santa Claus had given him and his pet rag doll, a nice kangaroo.

The air was cold and bright, and Charlie ran twice around the yard with his kangaroo under his arm. Then he took a pointed stick and poked a hole through the ice that lay on top of a little pend where his mamma raised water lilies in the summer.

"I believe that's a fish!" cried Char-He to his kangareo.

"It looks like a fish, but it may be a broken stick," said the kangaroo, who was quite wise for a doll. "If it weren't for these red mittens I could find out." said Charlie, throwing his mittens on the ground and reaching into the cold, cold water. Just then a little breeze began to play in the door, and too. It caught up Charlies red mittens and blew them right into the water, just as if they had been red nutumn leaves. "I'll get thein out," said the kangaroo doll. And he stepped up to the edge of the water, ran his long neck right down into it and brought up between his teet 1 a pair of sopping wet red mittens that Santa Claus had once brought a little boy.

Then Mollie takes him in her are She's only ten years old-And Charlie grabs her round the neck With strangulation hold. But Mollie never seems to care. She grabs him tight, and then She shifts him round upon her him And hurries on again.

President Wilson Emphatically Indorses Go to Church Movement. Go to Church.

DRESIDENT WILSON emphatically indorsed the GO TO CHURCH campaign in a letter he sent to the Massillon (O.) chamber of commerce. He declared that the habit of churchgoing LAY AT THE FOUNDATION OF STEADFAST CHARACTER and the MAINTENANCE OF THE STAND-ARDS OF LIFE. Herewith is produced a facsimile of President Wilson's letter:

THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTOR

I need not tell you that your effort to quicken the church-going habit among our people meets with my warmest sympathy It has always seemed to me that the habit of church-going somehow lay at the foundation of steadfast character and the maintenance of the standards of life

Substitutes For Meat That Have Same Food Value

Meat is always high priced and especially so now, says Miss Leonora Richards, assistant in domestic science in the Kansas State Agricultural college. There are many foods which have the same nutritive value as meat. and these may be used as meat substi-Baked beans, cheese fondu, macaroni and cheese, baked rice and cheese, cheese souffle, corn and cheese souffle, and rice with lentils may be served as substitutes for meat and are much cheaper in preparation. Eggs are an excellent meat substitute and may be prepared in a variety of ways, but their present high price is prohibitive. Persons who cannot eat without meat should buy the cheaper cuts, such as flank steak, rump and chuck roasts, heart, liver and chuck steak. These cuts contain the same amount of nutriment as the more expensive cuts, but are not so tender. In order to make the cheaper cuts of meat palatable they should be cooked slowly at a low temperature. Stewing is preferable. Seasoning with highly flavored vegetables and spices improves the flavor.

Kitchen Wrinkles

When boiling meat start it only at the boiling point, then let it simmer till tender.

When you accidentally spill hot grease on the bare floor dash cold water on it at once. This hardens the grease so that it can be scraped up before much of it soaks into the floor.

Tire Saving Device.

An ingenious device consisting of a magnet carried in front of each of the two forward wheels of an automobile and in close proximity to the ground has just been invented, according to the Popular Science Monthly. It will prevent the puncturing of pneumatic tires by automatically picking up magnetic particles such as chips of metal, tacks, nails and the like.

The magnet is pivoted to the front end of an extending arm attached to the front axle wheel spindle, so that it will swing with the wheel during steering and always remain in front of it.

EARLY BRIDGE BUILDING.

Ancient Babylon Seems to Have Beer the Pioneer In the Art.

Bridge building is one of the ancient arts, though no definite record of a permanent bridge appears before 2200 B. C. This was the time of Nimrod, the third ruler after Noah. The river Euphrates flowed most inconveniently through the city of Babylon, so the decree went forth that a structure be devised to cross the stream. The result was an arched bridge of brick 660 feet long and 30 feet wide.

Some thousand years later Nitocris, then queen of the Babylonians, seeking something new to occupy her mind, decided that another bridge was needed to handle the vast crowds which thronged to that city of mystery. Her engineers were consulted, and, marvel of marvels, a wooden bridge resting on stone piers made its appearance, the first of its kind in the history of the world! The stones in the piers were fastened together with huge chains of iron, with melted lead poured into the crevices.

While the problem to the eyes of the modern engineer would appear trivial, it was a vast undertaking in those days, so marvelous, in fact, that the course of the entire river was changed in order that the engineers might view the foundations on which the arches were to rest. Herodotus records that the bridge was of equal magnificence with the rest of the buildings of Baby-

Aside from these, no bridges of importance seem to have been built in Asia Minor, with one possible exception. The fabled Colossus of Rhodes is thought by some historians to have been a bridge, but as no remains have ever been found there is only theory to support the claim.-Edison Monthly.

A SERVIAN BARGAIN.

in This Sale the Buyer Had It About All Her Own Way.

In her book "Experiences of a Woman Doctor In Serbia" Dr. Caroline Matthews tells how she had set her heart on acquiring one of the gayly embroidered canvas bags used by the Serb peasant girls for marketing. They could not be bought at a shop, and the country folk were not tempted to surrender them for any reasonable price.

"I met a man leading a pack horse. and on that horse were strung some bags, and one of those bags was a glorious color, new and fresh. Have that bag I would! So I went into the middle of the road and quietly stopped the

"The man seemed amazed and rather inclined to resent being brought peremptorily to a standstill. I launched forth, in very halting Servian, on the weather, on the pony, and then out came my cigarette case and we were friends. Only one of the mad Engtish!' I suppose the fellow thought.

"The moment was ripe. I raised the bag, emptied the parcels on the saddle and placing some money beside Prompt Delivery them, looked at the man in a friendly way. He smiled. 'A new kind of game,' he thought. Without a word I held out my hand. In Servia when a bargain is concluded in the selling of a horse or cattle the men shake hands and so make the bargain legal. It is quite a little ceremonial. My new friend took my hand. The deed was done. The bag was mine."

Story of Empress Eugenie. Of one of the visits the Empress Eugenie made to the Paris hospitals during the cholera plague that afflicted

France in 1865 the following pretty incident is told: At the Hospital Beaujon the empress took the hand of a dying victim, who, mistaking her identity, kissed her hand and murmured, "I thank you, sister." The nun who accompanied the empress whispered: "You are mistaken, friend. It is not I, but our good empress who speaks." "Nay, sister," retorted the empress quickly; "he has given me the sweetest of all names."

Modern Berlin.

It was Frederick II., styled the Iron, who constructed the first building on the site of modern Berlin. This was a castle which was the first domicile of the Brandenburg electors. It was much damaged in the Thirty Years' war, but after this the town started to loom up around it. However, its present strength dates from the formation of the German empire and it ranks third, after London and Paris, in population of the cities of Europe.

To Make Thin Hands Plump.

Wash in very warm water, rub in cocoa butter or any preferred skin food for five minutes and then hold your hands for an instant in ice cold water. Wipe dry. The cold water closes the pores while they are filled with the cream, and new tissue is built in a most satisfactory manner.-Philadelphia Record.

Anecdotes of Lincoln weary of asking what was the true Abraham Lincoln, and every side light upon his character is significant, says Abram J. Dittenhoefer in "How We Elected Lincoln." He writes in the book:

replied:

"The president of the United States has a multiplicity of duties not specifled in the constitution or the laws. This is one of them.

It is money which belongs to a negro porter from the treasury department. He is now in the hospital, too sick to sign his name, and, according to his wish, I am putting a part of it aside in an envelope, properly labeled, to save it for him."

An eyewitness relates that one day while walking along a shaded path from the executive mansion to the war office be saw the tall form b of the president seated on the grass.

He ended by giving him a note directing him to the proper place to secure attention.

The papers bore the presiby an order retiring him on threequarters pay for the years of helplessness that lay before him.

"Some of my generals complain that I impair discipline in the army by my pardons and respites," Lincoln once said. "But it rests me after a hard day's work if I can find some excuse for saving a man's life, and I go to his family and his friends."

I once heard Mr. Lincoln telling number of congressmen in the anteroom of the White House that in the distribution of patronage care should be taken of the disabled soldiers and PPARENTLY the world is never the widows and orphans of deceased soldiers, and these views were subsequently conveyed to the senate in a message which contained the following language:

"Yesterday a little indorsement of mine went to you in two cases of postmasterships sought for widows whose A man whom I knew well discovered husbands have fallen in battles of the the president at his office counting war. These cases occurring on the greenbacks and inclosing them in an same day brought me to reflect more envelope. He asked Mr. Lincoln how attentively than I had before as to he could spare the time for such a task what is fairly due in the dispensing in the midst of the important duties of patronage to the men who by fightthat were pressing upon him. Lincoln ing our battles bear the chief burden of saving our country. My conclusion is that, other claims and qualifications being equal, they have the better right, and this is especially applicable to the disabled soldier and the deceased soldier's family."

How "Honest Abe" Settled a Lawsuit

While Abraham Lincoln was in Springfield a fellow lawyer, who was mainly supported by the other lawvers of the town, became indebted to a wealthy citizen for $2,50.

The rich man directed Mr. Lincoln to bring suit. Lincoln was unwilling, but his client insisted.

Finally Mr. Lincoln said, "Well, if you are determined, my charge will be $10." The client paid the money at once.

After his departure Lincoln went out of the office, returning in an hour with an amused look. Asked what pleased him, he said: "Well, I brought the suit against - and then hunted him up and told him. I gave him half of my $10, and we went over to the seeking back pay and a pension, had squire's office, where he confessed

Mr. Lincoln added that he saw no other way "to make things so generally satisfactory."

When Lincoln Expected Defeat. On Aug. 23, 1864, Lincoln wrote the

"I am Abraham have secured his election on such Lincoln," he said upon leaving, and grounds that he cannot possibly save

The above illustrates Lincoln's unlowing day the chief of the hospital assuming manner, as did his remark delivered to the boy a commission in when told of the certainty of his renomination:

"I don't quite forget that I was nomdent's signature and were accompanied inated by a convention that was twothirds for the other fellow."

THE "BURNING BUSH."

A Wonderful Plant Whose Vapor May Be Set Aflame.

The "burning bush," which is known to botanists as the Dietamnus fraxinella, is regarded as one of the most wonderful plants in the world. This plant is native to western Asia, though it is now found in some gardens of the temperate zone. In connection with the dictamnus it is rather remarkable that the species is common where the incident of Moses and the burning bush is said to have occurred.

A great many people who grow the plant are quite unaware of its strange habits. As a matter of fact, the dictamnus secretes a fragrant essential oil in great abundance, which, botanists say, is produced in especially large quantities by the flower stems, in warm weather volatilizing so that the air surrounding the plant is impregnated. Further this vapor is highly inflammable, and if a naked flame is brought near to the plant the fumes at once take fire with a most singular result. The whole plant is surrounded with crackling, shooting flames red ish in color and leaving a highly aromatic odor behind thenk The burning bush does not seem to be injured in any way by the fire, for the names do not actually come into contact with the plant itself.

Several conditions are needful if the experiment with the burning but has to be a success. Thus it is essential that the air should be very dry and waren; also that there should be practically no wind. The best effects are secured only just after the opening of the flowers. It will be realized that these conditions cannot always be relied upon. A plan has recently been devised by means of which the inflammable nature of the vapors given out by the dictamnus may be shown with startling effect.

A strong plant of the burning bush is raised in a pot. At the time when the flowers are just reaching perfection"the plant is placed in a glass jar or a case. This is closely covered for some hours before the time of the experiment. On removing the cover a light is held over the plant, when there is at once a tremendous outburst of flame. So great may be the rush of fire that the experimenter is cautioned to keep his face away from the top of the jar, as a serious burn is not by any means out of the question. After an interval of an hour or so with the jar. or case closed up the experiment may be repeated with similar results.-Denver News.

The Versatile Manchurian Farmer. In the early fall in Manchuria the natives undergo a sort of magic change from farmer to bandit. It seems something of a psychological somersaultone day a plodding farmer, the next a highwayman. After the tall kaoling. or giant millet, is cut, and escape is not so easy over the bare plains, another clap of the hands, and, lo, a peaceful farmer once more! It is not only the farmer who plays this exciting game; many another staid member of the community has his little fling. Some even combine their roles, differentiating according to the seasons. With the oriental's disregard for conditions, a man is often a bandit, merchant and magistrate all at once.-Alice Tisdale in Atlantic.

Macaulay's Torrent of Talk.

"Macaulay improves! Macaulay improves!" Sydney Smith remarked one day. "I have observed in him of late flashes of-silence." The "sonorous vivacity" of this enormous talker nettled Smith, who found it impossible often to voice his own wit and wisdom. "I wish I could write poetry like you." he complained to a friend. "I would write an 'Inferno,' and I would put Macaulay among a number of disputants and gag him!"

Another contemporary described Macaulay as 'slopping all over on every subject and standing in the slops."

Wanted to Patent a Circus.

P. T. Barnum once came to the office to know if he could patent the three ring circus. In technical parlance his three ring circus was an aggregation and not a combination to produce a new result. Therefore it was not patentable, which information highly incensed the showman. "It will be adopted by every circus just as soon as I make it known," he declared. And it was .- Scientific American.

hearted, clear-visioned statesman, faced a great nation. In all probability among situation similar in many respects to the the questions which will be considered clamor for a "peace without victory" that has gone out recently. Bent but not broken by the vast responsibilities resting and referendum? spon him, Lincoln replied to the demand for peace made upon him :-

"We accepted this war for an object, and a world object, and the war will end when the object is attained under God. I hope it will never end until that time.'

Lifted out of a slough of financial despond by the unexpected breaking out of a war in Europe, blinded by an incidental prosperity that has narrowed vision on the meanest of earth's possessions, this country has drifted into a situation that easily accounts for the scorn of that portion of the world forced into war as the only means of escape from a ruthless force. For two years America has seemed to consider it to be its only business to rake in the Almighty Dollar with both hands, utterly forgetful that man is God's husbandman, - the almoner of his bounties, - not the selfish hoarders of his good

We use the utterance of Abraham Lincoln given to the world a half century ago because, as we view it, there is much that is analogous between the situation then and now. Then, as now, it was aristocracy and a divine right to rule that was in a death grip with a larger freedom. But then it was nations on the other side of the Atlantic who were blinded by the same causes that have contracted America's vision for two years. Older people remember with what just indignation the selfishness, lack of realizing ficial light. Constitutional Convention.

We are near enough to the date set for the convention, decreed by two sessions of the Legislature and endorsed by popular vote of 217,293 to 120,979, to make any facts regarding the approaching convention of interest. From an address recently delivered by Edwin A. Bayley, infringements were not flagrant, how-Esq., well known as representative of the ever, and only when McCarthy, appardistrict made up of Arlington and Lexington in the General Court, a short time ago, we gleam the following facts.

The convention will consist of 320 delegates,-16 at large, 64 from the several congressional districts and 240 from Legislature districts. These are to be named minutes of play in the second half. on nomination papers filed not later than special election May 1. The convention assembles in the State House in Boston the City Hospital, where eight stitches March 6, 1917 and a choice made at a the sixth day of June next. In the main the present constitution is that adopted in 1780, but it has been amended by the addition of forty-four sections during the 137 years since it was first enacted as the organic law of this Commonwealth. It is of interest to note that Rev. Jonas Clark, pastor of the church at Lexington during the Revolution, was a member of this first constitutional convention. In 1820 the people of this Commonwealth voted to have a convention to revise the constitution, but instead of revising, it recommended the adoption of fourteen amendments endorsed by the convention. These were adopted by popular vote and became a part of the consticonvention, but when submitted to popular vote, the decision was in the negative. The work of a convention in session from May to August, 1855, was rejected as a whole when the legal voters had the chance to express their views. This in brief is the history of our State Constitution, which antedates that of the United States by eight years. It has never been revised, - simply amended from time to time and is a pretty satisfactory document just as it is, despite its age. In concluding his address, Mr. Bayley said:-

"Some of our sister states have meanwhile revised their Constitutions several times and some may argue that we have suffered by adhering so closely to our original Constitution and plan of government. While opinions on this point may differ, there can be little difference of opinion that our State Government and our laws stand today, and have always stood as a model for the sister states of the Union, and our Commonwealth is regarded, barring some climatic questions, as a most desirable place of residence. Our laws are just, yet liberal, and prosperity, safety and happiness are here In his day Abraham Lincoln, the pure found as nowhere else throughout this by the Constitutional Convention will be the following:-1. Shall provision be made for the initiative 2. Shall provision be made for bienniel elec-tions and bienniel sessions of the General Court? 3. Shall equal suffrage for men and women be granted?

4. Shall every grant or franchise forever alteration or remain subject to revocation, alteration or 5. Shall a short ballot be secured providing for the appointment by the Governor of such officers as secretary, treasurer, auditor and attorney general of the Commonwealth?

6. Shall the Governor's Council be abolished?

7. Shall the system of independent commissions and heards he abolished?

sions and boards be abolished?

sions and boards be abolished?

8. Shall judges be elected for fixed terms instead of appointed for life?

9. Shall capital punishment be abolished?

10. Shall the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages be prohibited?"

However the work of delegates at previous conventions was treated, the fact remains that the membership embraced many of the brainest men in the country. They were glad to serve and give to their constituencies the best that was in them. This should be the standard in selecting men to serve in the convention to assemble next June. If the right men do not offer themselves, a plan to draft the ablest and best should be formulated, but we shall be surprised if the old way is not continued and honors be grabbed by the scramblers.

For the most part Medford was on the defensive and it was the opinion of those who saw the game that Arlington, in the long run, is far the better team. the game, From the start it was what might be termed a rough game. Broken sticks were plentiful and hard checking and collisions brought many to the ice. Theatre Notes.

Boston has welcomed the international pantomime "Pierrot the Prodigal" to the Hollis Street Theatre, with as much enthusiasm as the European capitals where it has been an almost continual theatrical entertainment for the past 25 years. Friday, Japuary 26th, occurred the first social event of the year at the Arlington Section A 4. The following was their High school, when the Senior class gave a reception, followed by dancing, to the members of the School Board, the superintendent, faculty and Junior class. The entertainment, which was in the nature of a cabaret, was under, the direction of the Seniors advisor, Miss Mary G. Magner. It was carried out in the proper cabaret style,—that is the "cabaret company" occupying small tables. The young ladies were dressed in evening toilettes and the young men of the company in white flannels. Then there were the flower girls, who were in different colors of the flowers and the waiters in dress suits. It was a fine show from beginning to end and it is to be repeated this Friday

The opening chorus, "Pretty Baby," was by the waiters and the flower girls. Each lecture day donation day." Last year the people was fully two hours in length and with of the town contributed so generously the questions that came after each, the audiences were in session fully a half hour longer; yet at each service the assembly seemed unready to leave the presence of Dr. Swain, drinking in his words with profound attention.

The subject on Thursday evening was Bow can we know any of the Bible is the scriptures." Dr. Swain spoke first of the fact that all known peoples had a religion before the Bible was written. These contained errors, but they had helped the ancients to live up to a religion. The Bible is the best book the human race has ever known and while it may contain errors, which has been proven by science, still we can and will use it and find comfort in it. Dr. Swain began at Genesis, explaining its contents, and thus on through many of the unusual books, like that of Job and the Psalms, which he believed were written to teach lesson and were purely allegorical in their conception. His explanation of the Garden of Eden was especially interesting. Dr. Swain believes there are many a garden now in the universe in which there is forbidden fruit, and gave as an illuustration the bank clerk who is subjected to temptation in the handling of money not his own. This is his forbidden fruit. Dr. Swain touched on the miracles in the Bible. His point was not whether we believed they had or had not been performed. It makes no difference; it is how we are using our lives. It is not what we believe but how we live that is going to count.

The subject of the Friday evening lecture was "Why are so many people losing their assurance of immortality?" Does this loss make much difference if they live as they should live in this life?" Dr. Swain said the reason why so many are losing their belief in a future is because they have lost the reality of the present. They seem to think when they leave this world they will begin to live in God's realm and do his bidding, but unless they begin right here, they will have to pass through a preparitory school, so to speak, before they will be ready to come into God's intolding love. There could be no heaven if it were not for God's children, and it is God working with his children, that makes heaven and losing our assurance of heaven makes us just so far from realizing the kingdom of heaven, not only here but hereafter. When we are called to leave this earth we will be better fitted to go on in our spiritual attainments if we have acquired some of that perfection which is reached through the loving intelligent will of God working

CAMELS OF AFRICA

Superb Animals Used by the Arabs When on the Warpath.

TRAINED FOR GREAT SPEED.

These Mehari, as They Are Called, Can Cover a Hundred Miles a Day Without Undue Fatigue, and They Are Never Worked as Beasts of Burden.

"There are almost as many varieties of camels as horses," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. "The Arab name for camel is djemel. Those of Tunisia, Tripolitania and Algeria have one hump and are really dromedaries. Certain breeds of camel can withstand the great heat of the Sahara and others that of the zero weather of Tibet and China.

"It is amazing to see the rapidity with which a herd of 500 camels will eat to the ground a large pasturage of prickly pear from eight to ten feet high. Leaves, stems, prickles and all disappear like magic.

"In many parts of Africa the natives keep all their date stones and give them to exhausted camels, weary from their long Sahara march. The camel resists at first, and the date stones. moistened in & little water, are pushed forcibly by the handful down the camel's throat after it has been made to kneel and then securely fastened. In two or three days the camel learns to eat them of its own accord. The natives say that these date stones make the hump of the camel strong and

"The camel in its long march across the Sahara frequently finds very little to eat and lives on the fat of its own hump. When this continues during a long time the hump becomes flabby and almost disappears.

"The usual weight of the burdens carried by a camel varies from 550 to 600 pounds for journeys from town to town or on the border of the desert. Going across the desert the burden is less. When a camel is being laden it keeps up a continual snarling, and should it be overburdened it refuses to arise. Most camels are victous, and their bite is very dangerous. "To make the camel a fast runner the rider whips it on both flanks with a rhinoceros hide whip and cries out the proof dinating, behind the hour in Arabic to excite it. A young mehari is very fond of its own skin and on being struck starts on a gallop. The whipping keeps up, and the camel tries to get away by running faster. "When the rider jumps off or should he happen to fall, a well trained mehari will stand quite still and wait, while should the master happen to be injured the faithful beast will never leave him.

"A mehari is never used as a beast of burden. All it ever carries is a saddle (something like a Mexican saddle, made of gazelle skin, dyed red, with a high pommel and a cross in front), two saddlebags and a rider. The rider is buckled into the saddle by two belts. His feet are crossed in front of the saddle and rest on the neck of the mehari. His slippers are usually slung across the pommel, and the mehari is guided by the wriggling of the rider's

"An iron ring passes through one nostril of the animal, and a rein of camel's hair is attached.

"The mehara are used entirely by the Arabs when on the warpath, or razzia. A mehari on the warpath can save three men. Two ride it, and the third takes hold of its tail and is pulled along. The latter changes places with the rider at intervals. When a war party has lost so many camels that there remains but one camel for every three men it always retreats.

When going at full speed a mehari has a most remarkable single foot or pacing step, the motion of which is not at all disagreeable, and it can cover quite easily 100 miles in a day without 'undue fatigue."

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. ABOUT EFFICIENCY

Just What It May Mean In the Home.

SAVING OF HUMAN EFFORT.

An Expert Discusses How Housewives May Throw Off Cumbersome Ways of Doing Housework and Substitute a System That Helps Carry the Burden.

We have talked so much about efficiency that it might be well to stop a moment and consider what is the meaning of its opposite, inefficiency. Probably the best and simplest one word definition of efficiency is conservation. Likewise, we may sum up in efficiency in the simple word "waste."

Yes, inefficiency means waste, either in a process of work, the materials with which the work is done or with the worker. The great problem of efficiency, therefore, is to reduce or eliminate the amount of waste in any of these three lines. It is unfortunate if there is a waste in materials.

Waste in individual effort is what we are most concerned about, especially in regard to the effort of the homemaker. If there is waste, for instance, in the food used in the home, or if there is waste in the method which she uses at work, we regret it, but we are most sorry when she herself wastes her own effort so that she herself is deprived of necessary energy.

In fact, all our efforts are finally aimed to benefit the human worker. If we tell a woman to raise her sink or if we show her how to market economically we are doing so only that her personal effort shall be diminished. Some women write that they feel that this efficiency idea would be an added burden on top of their present work; that it would be harder to impose new schedules and new plans than to go on with what they are now doing. .

Efficiency does not in any way mean added effort. It means simply elimination or cutting down of present faults. For instance, the other day a woman announced, "If this efficiency idea of yours means a lot of expensive utensils I'm not going to have anything to do with it." Or another writes, "You don't mean that I should add a complicated system of work to my present duties." On the contrary, it is meant that both these women and others should merely sit down and study how at present there may be waste in their management. They do not need to add a cumbersome system or a dozen pots in order to be efficient. They need only see how they work now, see what amount of materials they use now, notice what waste motion or effort there tines and then merely eliminate some of this unnecessary work, this waste motion and this superfluous effort.

If a woman once gets firmly fixed in her mind that efficiency means the elimination of waste she has the key to this whole new, stimulating idea. It may be a waste in her food supplies, in the fuel she is using, a waste of time between various tasks, a waste of effort walking twenty feet unnecessarily. but somehow somewhere there will be waste. Then if she cuts down this waste in whatever department she finds it, in whatever task or routine she is in at the time, she will become efficient.

BAD TASTE IN FURNITURE.

A Preachment About Good Lines and Hard Woods.

It must have been William Morris who discovered the bad state of things, , for he was the most conspicuous member of the pre-Raphaelite brotherhood," the group of persons who banded themselves together to see if they could not better matters. To make way for better things the bad had to be done away, and Morris faithfully crusaded against the anti-macassar, the whatnot, the floral carpet, the gilded chair, the old black haircloth and the hideous furniture of the time. He fell short of absolute success because he tried to create a new and better thing. If he had only turned the tide backward and resurrected the beautiful furniture of the eighteenth century the world would have been just so much more full of good and beautiful things. Instead, he made possible by his movement the simplicity of the newer furniture, which, if not a thing of beauty in itself, cleared the decks for action, so that when its time was run somebody else would cast the necessary backward glance. All this, of course, has taken up until this twentieth century. The backward glance happened some years before the merchants began to feature period syles. In between people realized that there had never been displayed such genius as the designing of furniture in the bygone time. They took to it as ducks to water. Its vogue had increased and grown until the whole modern furniture trade has bent its back to accomplishing this business properly.

Encourage the child to wait on itself and you will be saved much work and will be giving the child an education which it will never be able to value until it has reached years of discretion. There are so many little helps that can be offered to make work attractive to children. For instance, a successful way to teach a child to put its soiled clothes out of sight is to make for its own use a little laundry bag of some cheerful color and on it embroider the word "Laundry." Hang it on a peg low enough for the child to reach and you will not have to remind the child more than two or three times of its duty

If you cannot afford to have nursery furniture for the child's room you should at least let the child share a bureau or dressing table with some one so that it can be taught quite young to put hair ribbons, handkerchiefs, etc., in a certain place. Let it understand that the space reserved is all its very own.

Corsage Bouquets.

Probably never before have artificial flowers had such a vogue as at present, and a small corsage bouquet is one of the best means of giving color to a dark street suit.

There are bunches of tiny flowers in brilliant red that are very good. There are bouquets consisting of a rosebud, a few forget-me-nots and a sprig or two of green. There are also nasturtiums, popples and many other flowers in their own natural rich coloring. The placing of the flower is rather important. It can be pinned to the left shoulder with good effect and looks well at the closing of the ruff or close collar of velvet and fur.

SPRING HATS.

Tips About the New Millinery That's Visible.

One of the best looking panamas in a notably good collection of sports hats was a rather small model whose rolling brim was edged by buttonholing in black and lemon yellow silks. Long stitches in the same colors formed a narrow line around the crown, and a flower made of white silk braid and black and yellow silks was applied flatly to the crown at the left front. The citron yellow was too pale to give the hat a striking air, but relieved the sharp contrast of white and black.

Much yellow in all the popular tones -citron, canary, gold, mustard, etc.-is in the sports hat showing and is featured both in straws and in fabrics. Crowns of felt and cloth are associated with straw brims, crown tops of fabric are set into crowns of straw and the brims may be all of the straw or partly of straw and partly of fabric.

The mossy rough straws of last summer combine very effectively with plain fabrics for sports hat purposes, and very fine, supple straw braids are used in two or even more colors, the colors alternating throughout the whole hat and giving the effect of narrow stripes running round the hat. A little collapsible hat of this sort in smart coloring with a brim facing of plain silk and a cockade trimming of similar plain silk would be a comfortable and practical possession.

Along with the various forms of high satin turbans come lower turbans innumerable in satin or faille or other silk or in silk and straw combined. Black, the dark browns and the deep blues are, as usual, much in evidence in these small street hats, and there are a good many purples and grays.

Purple and a medium old blue are much combined, and a clever little turban with the narrowest of cloche brims and the highest of crowns is all of purple satin, with its trimming a narrow band of old blue beads running around the high crown near its top and three tassels of old blue beads dangling from this band in front.

A small sailor shape with rather narrow sharply rolled brim is offered in satin and, though trying, is a jaunty and youthful model.

Wide brimmed floppy picture hats of finest crin are among the things offered for southern wear, and many of them seem to be of the turned up back and drooping front lines. One of these models was of the palest sulphur yellow tone with a wreath of camellialike roses shading exquisitely from the yellow of the hat down through deeper yellows into a fruity reddish pink and a ribbon of turquoise blue. Pure French this coloring and entirely successful.

Tulle hats and hats of tulle combined quantities of such models in black, with trimming entirely of tulle or great bows of tulle bound narrowly in satin or feather trimmings, such as have been used on the winter's large dress hats-paradise, gourah, imitation egrets and all the other delicate plumage.

About Home Lighting.

High intrinsic brilliance of lighting is not necessarily good lighting. We must aim to get away from the staring, high placed fixture, the bulb that makes a blur of light in one particular spot only. What we need in the home is not light, but lighting, two very different things.

Another point is that we should try to have our fixtures bear some relation to the harmony of the room and the furniture. Light has aesthetic qualities, but we seldom are led to believe so except on the stage. Light effects en the stage can be imitated in ideas in the home. Even the most sumptuous room will be ruined by a poorly placed, incongruous lighting fixture. Lighting must, first, be comfortable to the eye. It must, second, enhance the objects and furnishings of the room and not mar them. We can learn a great deal from the lighting experts, whether they be purveyors of gas, oil or electricity.

PRACTICAL APPAREL.

A Discourse About Interesting Sport Clothes For the Season.

There's something decidedly cheerful and buoyant about this word "sport," and as this is the attitude of mind that is most desirable to curtivate there is no doubt that sport clothes will help to keep us happy.

It isn't unlike's that more and more chapters of sport clothes will follow the first spring showing, for sport clothes are practical clothes, and surely we want no end of practical clothes this season and every new season to come, be it spring, summer, autumn or winter. Unluckily there is a great scarcity of sweaters in pure Angora and in the most desirable colors, the serviceable, warm looking and becoming heather mixtures being especially hard to find. In both browns and greens these heather mixtures or lightweight Angora or the heavier brushed wool are very much liked. So are the soft tans and forest greens and the violet purples flecked with white. All of these are dark enough to give excellent service before soiling perceptibly, and if they are not lively enough cap or hat and scarf of gaver tone will lend a lively note.

Still, some of the best looking costumes have a heather mixture sweater and cap of white Angora trimmed with the heather coloring. A scarf of white Angora banded on the ends with the darker color completes the set. And such a set is good, too, with a suit of heather jersey or other wool.

The all white Angora cap and scarf are usually becoming, and there are beautiful blues, rose tones, yellows and light greens in both these sets and the sweaters, although it is increasingly difficult to find the softly harmonious shades, and many distressingly crude colors are shown in these knitted

BEES AND FAIRIES.

Once upon a time there was a little old lady who lived with her grandchild in a house not very far from the magic woods.

People said the magic woods were full of elves and fairies, and they were afraid to go there. Little Hans loved the woods, though. Whenever his grandmother would allow him he went wandering away in the forest.

"Perhaps, grannie, I may some day meet with the kind fairy folk, and if I do I will not let them go until they tell me how I can be a useful little boy,"

"You are a useful little boy, dearie," his grandmother would answer.

"But I wish I could earn some money to make you more comfortable," he said. "When I'm a great big man I shall work so hard that you can wear a silk dress every day in the week."

One day when Hans was out in the forest he noticed a huge spider's web, and right in the middle of it was a poor bee buzzing and struggling to get

Hans was a kind hearted boy, and he was sorry for the insect.

He broke the web so that the bee could fly away. It did not go far, but perched on the branch of a tree. Hans was surprised to hear it speak.

"Thank you, Hans," it said. "I am the king of the bees, and I must reward you for saving me from wicked old Ogre Spider, who would soon have made a meal of me. If you will do as I tell you you shall always have delicious honey to eat and sell."

Then the bee told Hans to gather the seed of certain flowers that grew in the magic wood and plant them in his grandmother's garden.

The little boy took the seed home and planted them. When the magic flowers bloomed they were all yellow and gave off a delicious fragrance. Hosts of bees swarmed to the garden and worked busily filling the hives with honey. When the queen came by one day in her carriage she stopped to look at the garden and taste of the honey.

So delicious was the sweet that she ordered that it should be put up in golden pots for her own special use. The queen paid the little old lady so much for this honey that the little er could have afforded a silk gown for every day in the week if she had cared to have one.

LARGEST AMERICAN CATS.

Jaguars Are Bigger but Less Fierce Than African Leopards.

The jaguar, or "el tigre," as it is generally known throughout Spanish America, is the largest and handsomest of American cats. Its size and deep yellow color, profusely marked with black spots and rosettes, give it a close resemblance to the African leopard. It is, however, a heavier and more powerful animal.

In parts of the dense tropical forest of South America coal black jaguars occur, and, while representing merely a color phase, they are supposed to be much flercer than the ordinary animal. Although so large and powerful, the jagular has none of the truculent ferocity of the African leopard. DUMAS HAD HIS REVENGE.

He Found a Fine Prize For the Friend Who Insuited Him.

Alexandre Dumas the elder, the great novelist, had, as is well known, some black blood in his veins and was of an unforgiving if not almost cruel nature.

In his earlier days Dumas received a dire insult from one whom he called his friend. To the surprise of all who knew him. Alexandre took no apparent notice of the wrong, but instead applied himself to looking carefully after the welfare of his supposed friend. BOTTLES ARE VERY ANCIENT.

Nearly as Old as Man, They Were First

Made of Animal Skins. Who made the first bottle has never been determined, but the necessity for some means of transporting liquids, of which water was undoubtedly the first to be considered, must have existed from the beginning of the human race, and it is generally considered probable that the illist receptacle for this purpose was made from the skin of an animal. This was removed with as little mutilation as possible, and all the unavoidable openings were carefully sewed up, leaving a single leg for filling or emptying, which was tied up with a cord.

These, we know, were used ages ago by many primitive peoples and have since been employed extensively in many parts of the world, and even today they may be seen in use in some oriental countries. It was this kind of bottle that was referred to in the Bible in the much quoted dictum relating to putting new wine into old botwas that the skin of an old bottle has become fully stretched and weakened by use, and if new wine was put into wine would burst the bottle.

INGENIOUS LETTER BOXES.

Clever Device In Use In Cities and Towns In Hungary.

"One sees mail boxes in operation in Hungary, both in cities and small towns, that are the last word in efficiency, and they are certainly good to look at as to their design," says F. R. Schlesinger. "It was fourteen years ago that I saw them, and they had then been in operation for many years, and I have yet to see anything better in any part of the world.

"The letter boxes are such that one does not have to lift any part of them in order to drop the letter. There is a wide slot on both sides protected by brass flaps working on hinges, so that the letter drops down without any possibility of becoming stuck near the top in the lift, as in our boxes. Furthermore, the letter carrier does not touch any letter when he takes the mail out. He has a bag with a locked steel oblong automatic top, the key to which is in the postoffice.

"This top of the bag is slid into a slot at the bottom of the mail box, which opens automatically and can only be opened by the insertion of this specially prepared bag. By virtue of this the entire bottom of the mail box rolls back and its contents drop straight down into the bag. Upon removal of the bag by sliding it outward the bottom of the box slides back into place and locks automatically, as well as the bag with its automatic top."-New York World.

Strength of an Indian Beetle.

One day a native servant brought me a longicorn beetle which he was carrying by its feelers, while the beetle was carrying a stone weighing nearly half a pound.

But how the feelers could stand the strain (the beetle was carried in this fashion for about forty yards) and how the legs could retain their hold of a heavy stone which they could not encompass I cannot conceive. The length of the beetle was two and onefourth inches, its feelers three inches, and it weighed one-fourth ounce only, while the stone weighed seven and one-fourth ounces, measured three and one-fourth by two and one-half inches and was seven inches in circumference.—Serampore (Bengal) Letter.

Use of the Word "Some."

The American "some" is so modern -at least in adoption on this side of the Atlantic-that even now we have recorded the case of a British officer who did not understand it. But one finds it in Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff's diary as long ago as 1880. He was dining with the Hudson's Bay company at the City club, where Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian prime minister, made a speech about the recent inclusion in the Dominion of all British North America save Newfoundland.
